

ABSTRACT

The present invention provides a high voltage semiconductor device capable of withstanding excessive breakdown and clamping voltages. The device includes a high resistivity substrate, and an epitaxially grown, low resistivity layer having a stress-relieving dopant. During production, the low conductivity region has one surface that is etched before a high conductivity region is diffused into it or epitaxially deposited on it.

RECORDED BY: D. L. COOPER
SEARCHED BY: D. L. COOPER
INDEXED BY: D. L. COOPER
FILED BY: D. L. COOPER